ST. GEORGE,
Champion of England.

The HISTORY and Gallant Achievements of the
SEVEN CHAMPIONS
of CHRISTENDOM.

London Published by Didier & Tebbett 76 St James's Street Jan 11308

S^t George & the dragon.

In Egypt was a Dragon dire,
With scales of adamant, breath of fire;
And Egypt's Princess fair and good,
Was doom'd to be the monster's food;
S^t George this famous dragon slew,
And for his wife gain'd Sebra true.

S^T ANDREW.

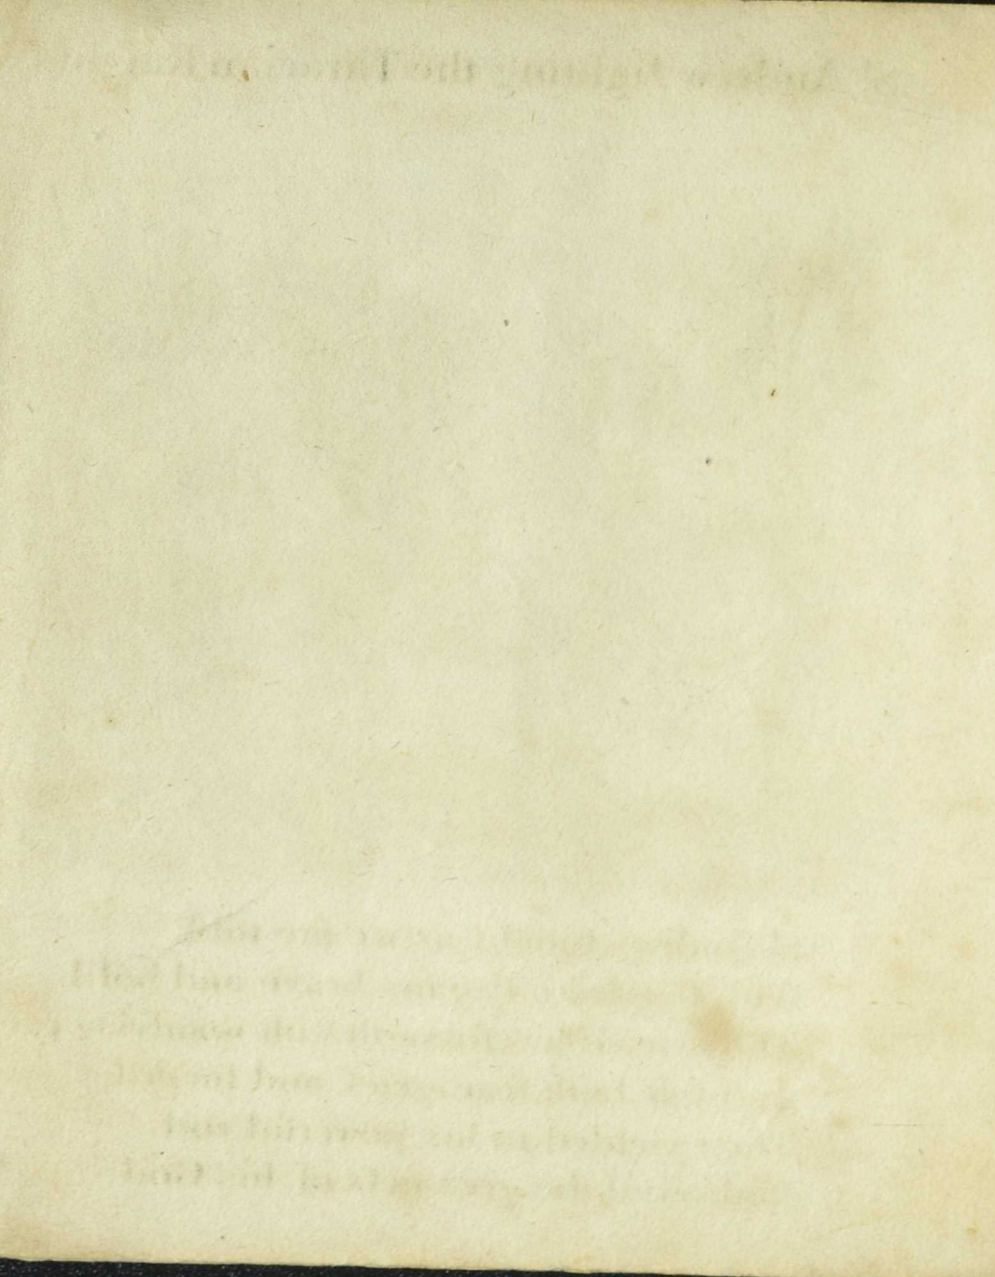

S^t Andrew, Scotland's famous Knight,
In deeds of valour took delight;
Damsels forlorn and matrons grave,
From insult 'twas his care to save;
For acts of Chivalry renown'd,
His fame did thro' the world resound.

S^t. Andrew fighting the Thracian Knights.

S^t. Andrew fought as we are told,
With five score Pagans brave and bold;
They view'd his strength with wond'ring eyes,
And felt both fear, grief, and surprize;
Then yielded to his powerful rod,
And own'd the greatness of his God.

ST DAVID.

St David, Welchman's Champion bold,
Prefer'd rude war to ease and gold;
He fighting for his faith divine,
Unhors'd and slew Prince Palestine;
His Pagan followers wondered great,
And worship'd David's true God straight.

S^T PATRICK.

S^t Patrick, Ireland's valiant Knight,
Did thirty Satyrs put to flight;
Rescued from them six Ladies fair,
And then protected them with care;
Great fame and glory he acquir'd,
And last a holy Priest expir'd.

ST DENNIS.

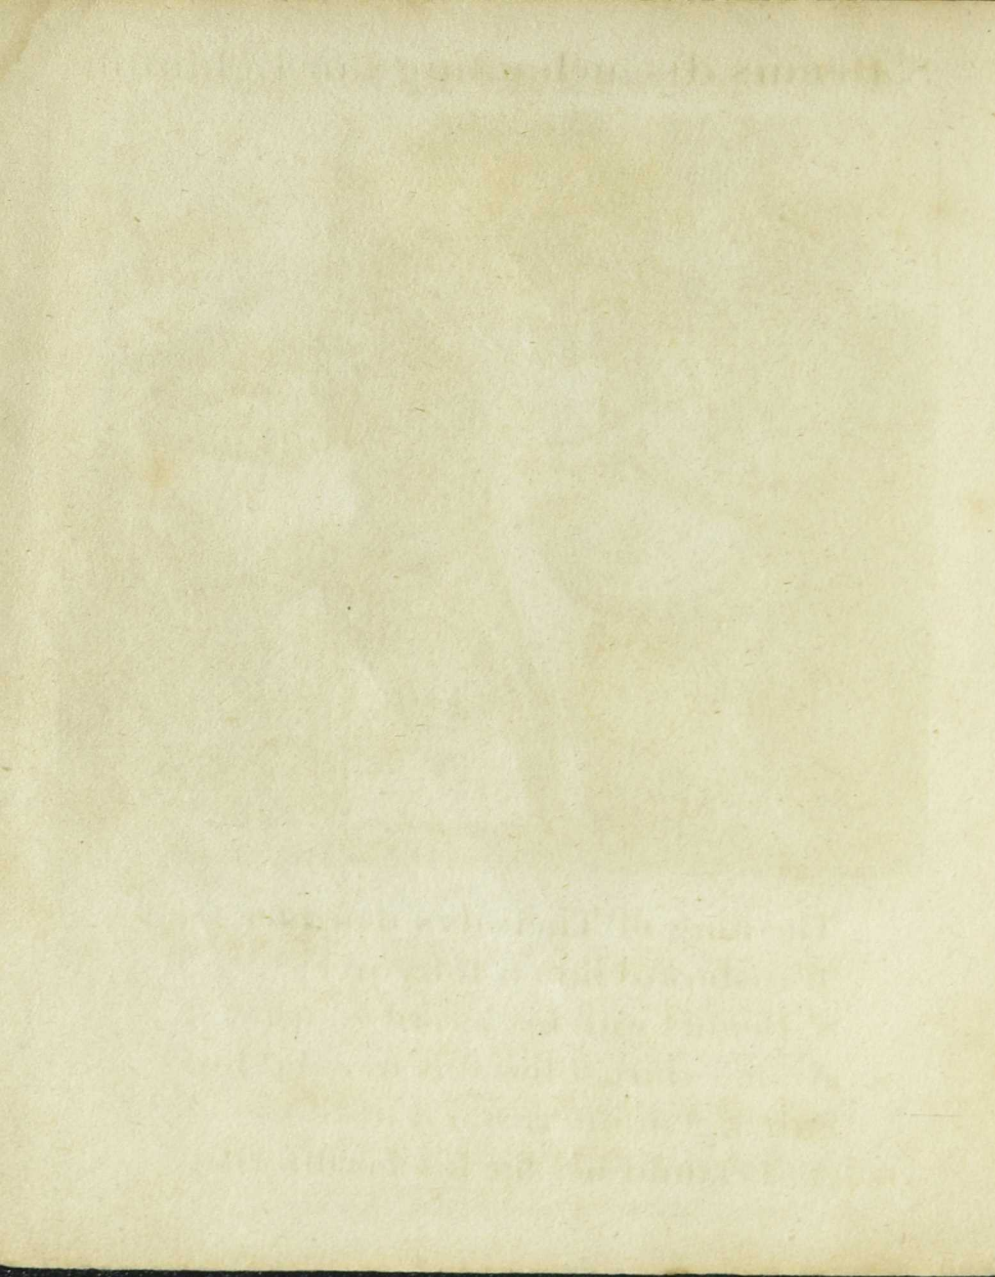

St Dennis this, the Knight of France,
As brave as ever poiz'd a lance;
His deeds of Arms by fame rever'd,
Esteem'd by good, by wicked fear'd;
Undaunted he the world march'd o'er,
The first to join wars hostile roar.

S^t Dennis disenchanting fair Eglantine.

The King of Thessaly's daughter see,
Transform'd into a lofty tree;
S^t. Dennis with his sword so true,
At one sturn blow this tree did hew;
Fair Eglantine restor'd to life,
And claim'd her for his lawful wife.

ST. JAMES.

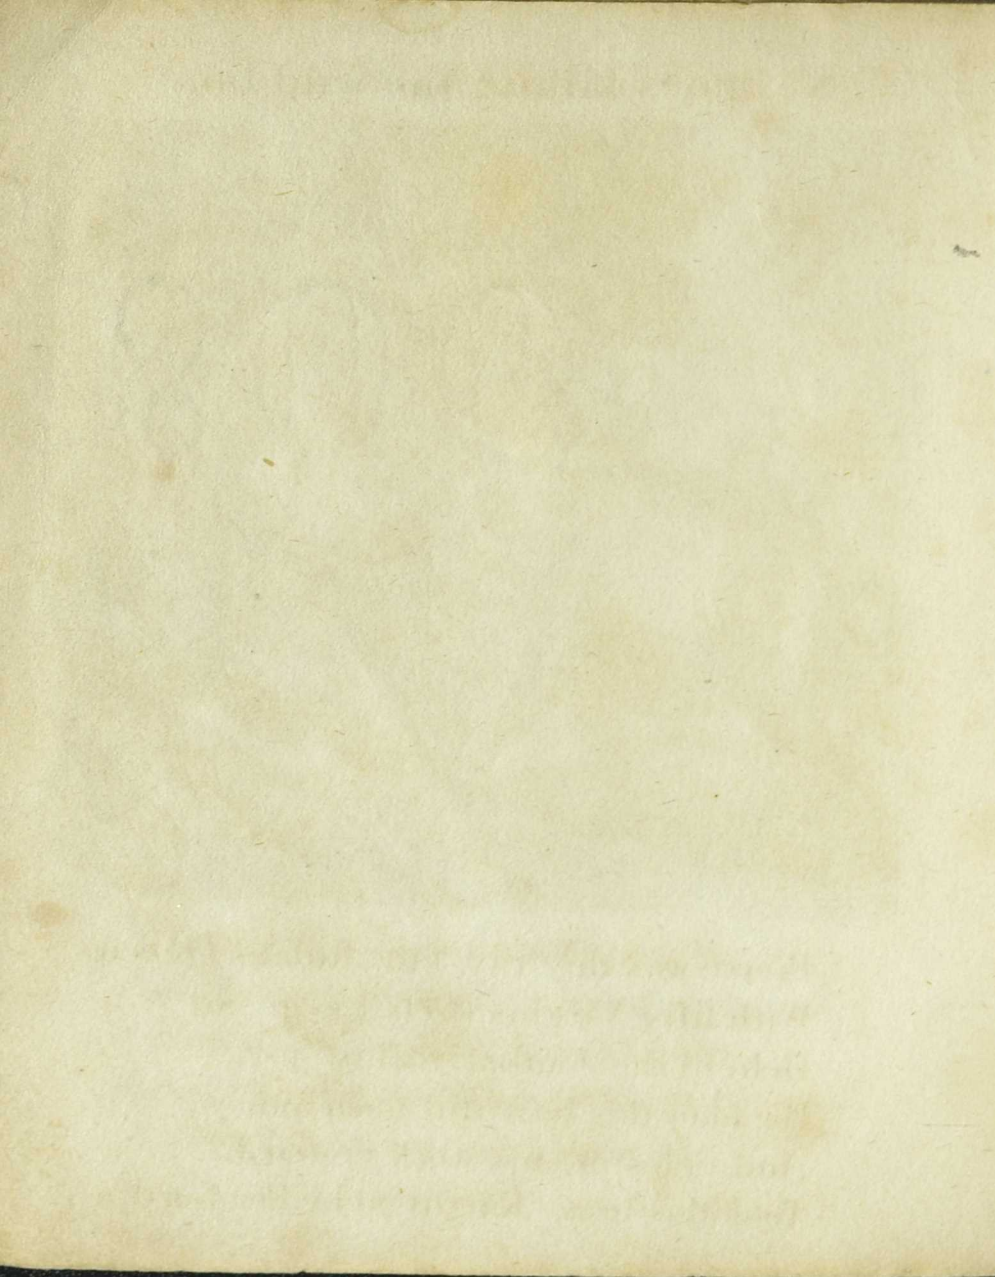

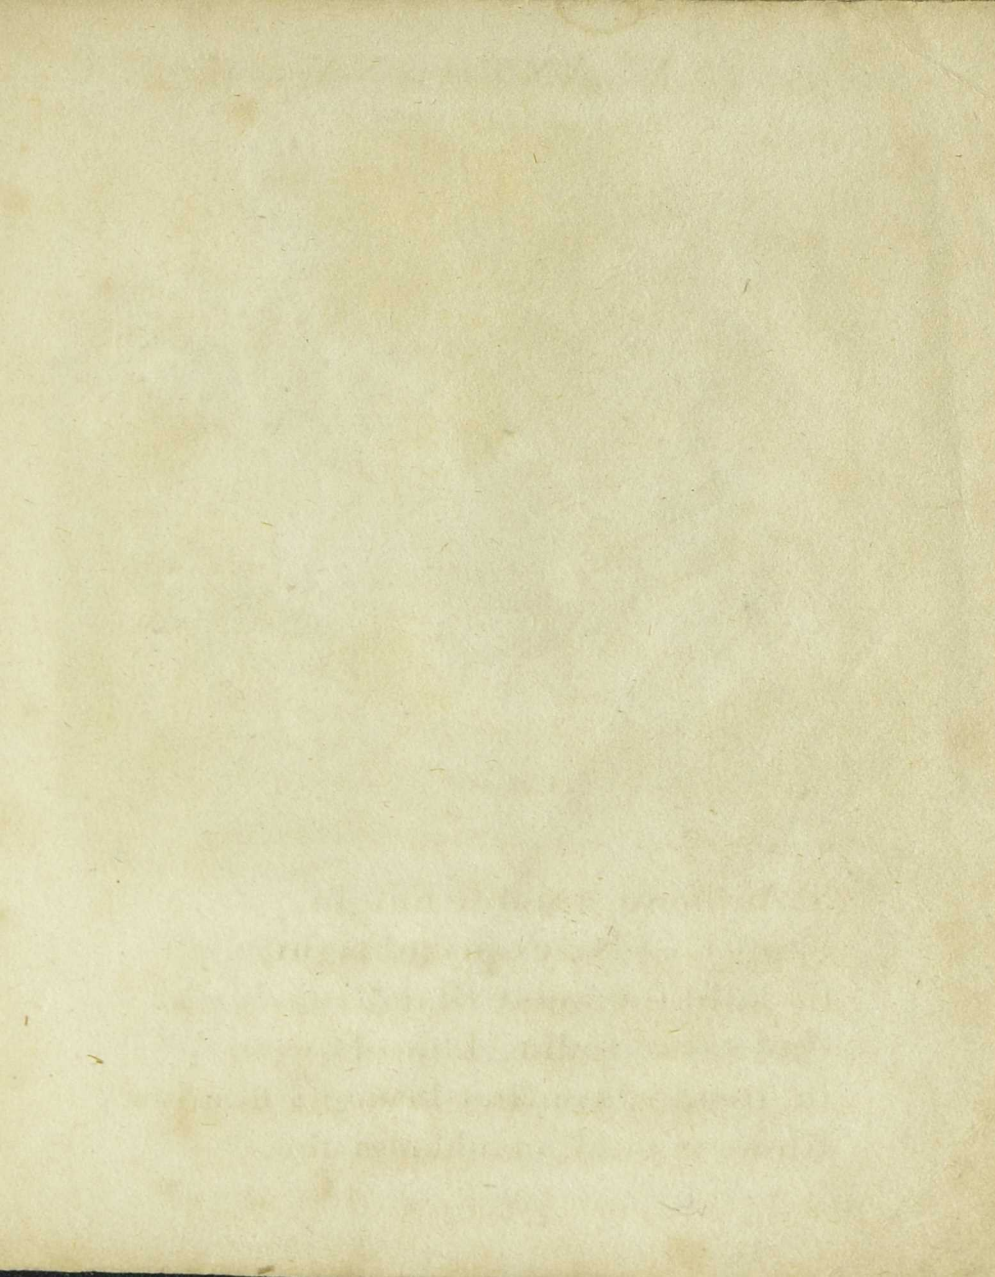

St. James, the Champion was of Spain,
And Spaniards broils he did maintain;
Of all who shone in martial fight,
He surely was the stoutest Knight;
A raging boar inflam'd with ire,
Did by this Hero bold expire.

St. James killing the wild boar.

Fierce was the fray, fair Judahs Queen,
With fifty Virgins dress'd in green;
Beheld the combat full of joy,
For long this boar did them annoy;
And Celestine his work t'reward,
Took this brave Knight to be her Lord.

ST. ANTHONY.

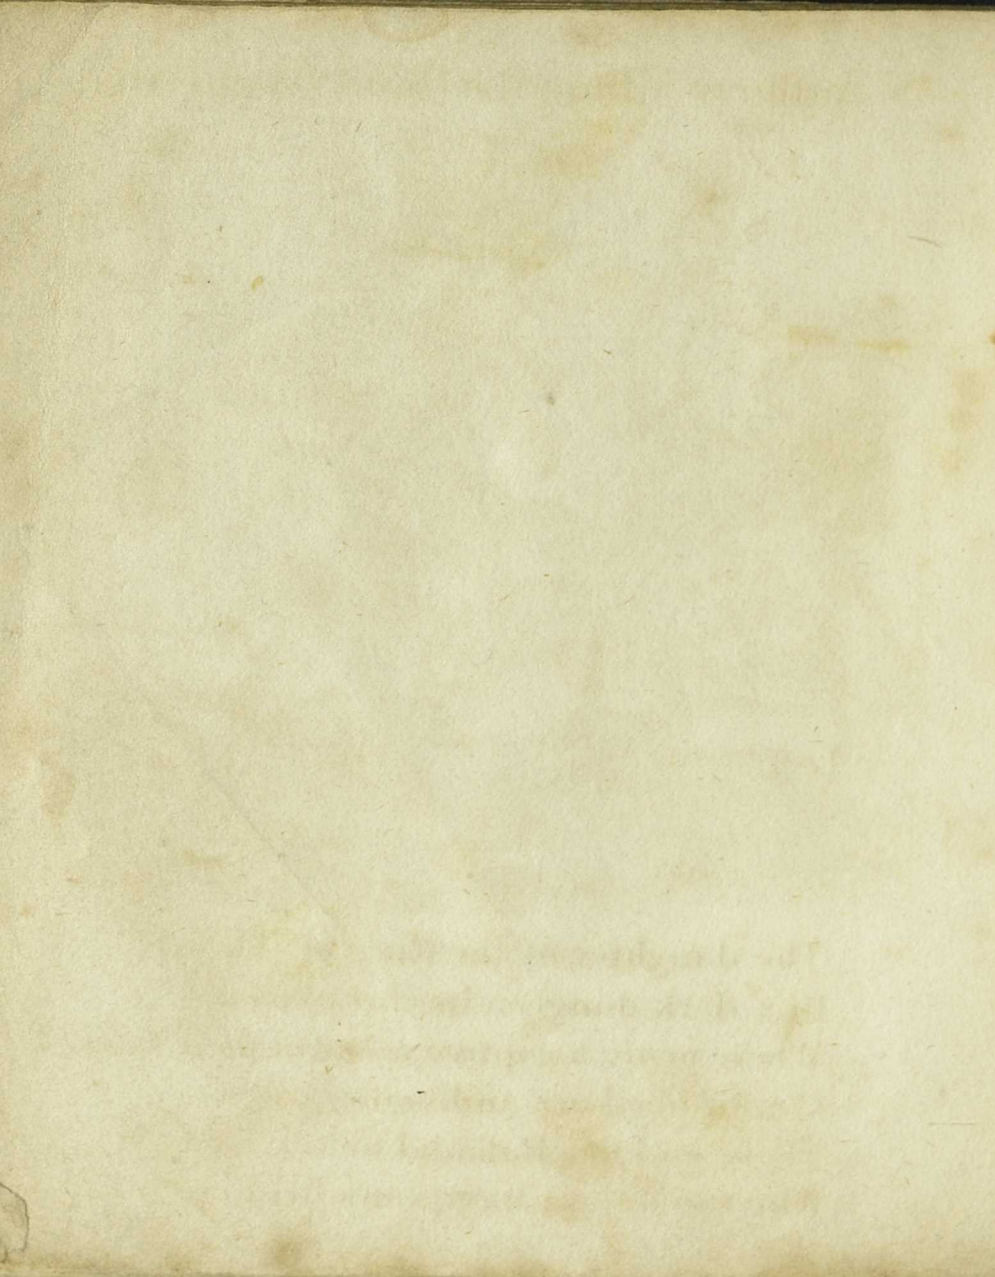

St Anthony a noble Knight,
Supported Italy's proud right;
He kill'd the giant Blanderon,
And never fading Laurels won;
In dreadful conflict brought him low,
Who was to all mankind a foe.

S^t. Anthouy killing the Giant Blanderon.

The daughter of the King of Thrace,
In a dark dungeon he did place;
Where many a captive mourn'd their fates,
Confin'd by bars and massy gates;
These and fair Rosalind he set free,
Who vow'd the Champion's bride to be.
